

College Presenters Say

"I am really excited about this because it tests both my ability as a cross-cultural learning teacher and my promise in providing [an] essential primary source of information for [the] eager minds that this program targets!"

--Fatema Abdulla Bunafoor, exchange student from Bahrain

Once you see that American students are interested in your culture, or once you see that they tell what you teach to someone else, you must want to teach more about your country to them. Language in Motion is the great chance that you can know and tell more about your country."

--Michiru Matsumoto, degree student from Japan

Language in Motion Alumni Say

"[My] LIM presentations boosted my confidence, especially because the students were so interested and the teachers really appreciated the time and effort I gave to involving the students and teaching them something new."

--Laura Krystek Hanley, studied in Germany

"I learned so much about interacting with others, especially those from other cultures, that has been incredibly beneficial to me since graduation."

Heather Ferlitch, student office assistant and driver

Faculty and Administrators

"Language in Motion provides high-impact learning opportunities for our students and visibility for the college while fostering positive community relationships. We love it and you will, too!"

--Dr. James A. Troha, President, Juniata College

"Language in Motion is a terrific experiential and service-learning opportunity for the Juniata students who participate. The students develop their presentation and communication skills while significantly enhancing the curriculum of the classrooms in the districts served. Language in Motion also provides a chance for our students to share with others about the deeply meaningful intercultural experiences they have had either by participating in study abroad or by studying at Juniata from their home countries."

--Kati Csoman, Dean, Juniata College Center for International Education

"Language in Motion is largely responsible for many educators and students starting to think of Juniata as a place that offers great opportunities for international programs and world languages."

--Dr. Henry Thurston-Griswold, Juniata College Professor of Spanish

Language in Motion Vision

By bringing together campus and school partners and by sharing resources across K-16, Language in Motion excites students to learn more about the world and its peoples, improves and enriches language and culture teaching and learning, hones intercultural skills, demonstrates the value of higher education and of studying language and culture, and supports networks of educators locally and nationwide.

Language in Motion Mission

An award-winning model developed at Juniata in 2000, Language in Motion expands, enriches, and energizes K-16 language and culture teaching and learning through educational outreach and professional development opportunities that will:

- Offer in K-12 classes personalized language and culture presentations by college students with knowledge of a second language or culture, who serve as enthusiastic role models.
- Enrich and expand world language and culture curricula in isolated, under-resourced, and/or primarily homogeneous K-12 schools.
- Establish and nurture active, productive, K-16 professional networks and share international resources.
- Provide professional development opportunities in language and culture, including conference scholarships, immersion study, and workshops.
- Develop and support a nationwide consortium.

Frequently Asked Questions

Q: Is the model replicable?

A: Absolutely. The program is designed around core goals and common program elements, but it is inherently flexible.

Q: Where can the program be housed?

A: In an academic department or in the study-abroad, international, or community service office.

Q: How do college students participate?

A: Each partner decides. Some offer credit, some have a competitive process, and some work with volunteers.

Q: Why do college students participate?

A: To share another language and culture with others, improve their self-confidence and/or communication skills, learn more, process their international experiences, and have fun.

Q: Why have a consortium?

A: To share program ideas and materials, provide mutual support for addressing challenges, expand professional development opportunities, conduct assessments, provide quality control, seek joint funding, and disseminate the model. We welcome new members.

Q: How can I join the Language in Motion consortium?

A: Request "Use of Name"; agree with the mission, vision, and goals; and agree to our partner expectations. Then receive a full set of program materials.
